

22 June 2006

Statement of AQUA (European Association of water meters manufacturers) referring to your public consultation

- The old approach directive 75/33 CEE can be repealed.
- The specific annex MI 001 of MID currently transposed in a majority of member states does not need any modification.

The scope of the directive is limited to clean water (cold or warm, potable or not) and covers most of the water meter markets where consumers need protection.

- No additional MI annexes are needed.

AQUA believes that there is no need for additional legislation for other applications. They are too specific and require other type of meters often covered by ISO / CEN standards. The involved markets do not require additional requirements.

Best regards

Andreas Meyer Jüres

President of AQUA

Correspondence address:

Jacques Senave [jsenave@skynet.be]